

The Narrows, Utah

60 miles West of Salt Lake City, The Narrows are a good place to stop for a day or two and work on some hard climbs in a quiet place.

How to get there: Get off at exit 99 (Stansbury-Tooele-36 S) of Interstate 80. Drive on route 36 South and turn right when you see the sign for Grantsville. Once in Grantsville turn left at the "National Forest North and South Willow Canyon" sign. Drive on this road until you see the sign for South Willow Canyon (turn right). This road will turn into a dirt road. Keep driving. After campings and the ranger station you'll see a narrow pass. Keep driving, the second pass is the one you're looking for. Park either before or after the cliff without blocking the road.

Amenities: You can camp at the National Forest campground. There are basic groceries in Grantsville.

When: The summer is the best time to visit.
